Financial Forensics

MIDDLETOWN — Mahoney Sabol & Company, LLP announces that Founding Partner Michael Sabol has been awarded the Certified in Financial Forensics credential by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

The CFF is a newly created specialty credential in forensic accounting that recognizes forensic accounting expertise combined with the core knowledge and skills that make CPAs among the most trusted business advisers.

Essentially, it positions the credential holder as a premier forensic accounting services provider.

The CFF encompasses fundamental and specialized forensic accounting skills that CPAs apply in a variety of service areas, including: bankruptcy and insolvency; computer forensics; economic damages; family law; fraud investigations; litigation support; stakeholder disputes and valuations.

Forensic accounting consists of two major components: litigation services and investigative services that make use of the CPA's skills that may or may not lead to courtroom testimony.
